To the Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

Sir:—I think the people of Virginia should be congratulated on having a paper that takes such interest in their history as is shown by the notes that appear from time to time in the editorial columns of The Times-Dispatch. I call special attention to the one, "Preserve Local History," appearing August 27. Do the people of Richmond and State at large realize the work done in the historical line by the Confederate Memorial Literary Society?

The Confederate Memorial Literary Society is the repository for their work since the museum was opened, February 22, 1894. This band of faithful women through the South, for each Confederate State and Maryland is represented by a room bearing its name and coat of arms, these women, by gift and loan, have collected (or they have had to fund to purchase) documents, papers, manuscripts, muster rolls of companies and regiments that would have been lost but only do these relate to the war for States' rights, but to matters leading up to this period. They have over 4,000 newspapers given them by the Southern Historical Society, many of which can be found in no other file; they have been carefully arranged in folio volumes, and each manuscript, paper and document is properly pressed, placed in heavy Manila folders, catalogued in alphabetical order. This work done by the committee with their own hands and without compensation. They have published a calendar of many important papers, and are only waiting for funds to publish other volumes. The committee for marking Confederate sites under the able chairman, Mrs. Mary Maury Werth, has searched out and identified places that would soon be unknown. The members of the committee, James N. Dunlop, chairman, has collected and bound over 30,000 rolls of honor—names of veterans that would never have been recorded. What have you, as an individual, done to encourage this work? An annual membership of 1,000 women means funds to continue our work. They need your help. Your appreciation. These untiring women have built a monument to the women of the South; they want no other. Please that you make this monument enduring. "APPRECIATION."

MEMBERS OF CREW PICKED UP AT SEA

All the Thirty-two Men of Steamer West Point Reported Safe.

Cape Race, N. F., September 4.—After much suffering, all of the thirty-two men comprising the crew of the British freight steamer West Point, Glasgow for Charleston, S. C., which burned to the water's edge in mid-ocean Sunday last, are safe.

News that the rescue of the West Point's crew had been completed by the picking up at midnight on Friday last of Captain Pinckham and fifteen men, who had been with him for five days in an open boat and the last few days without food, by the Cunard liner Mauretania, New York for Liverpool, was received here to-day by a wireless relay from that steamer.

Meanwhile an equal number of the crew of the ill-fated steamer, headed by the chief mate, is approaching Boston aboard the Leyland line Devonian from Liverpool, which accomplished their rescue Thursday morning. They will arrive in Boston late on Monday or early Tuesday. Tonight both parties were informed by wireless of the fortunate delivery of the other.

The message announcing the safety of Captain Pinckham and his party was relayed across nearly two-thirds of the Atlantic.

Rescued by Leyland Liner.
Boston, Mass., September 4.—Sixteen survivors of the thirty-six men who comprised the crew of the British steamer West Point, which took fire and foundered when four days out from Glasgow to Charleston, S. C., are aboard the Leyland Line steamer Devonian, which is to-night steaming toward Boston. The Devonian, according to a dispatch from St. Johns, N. F., to-night picked up the men at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning, while in latitude 47.20 north. They were in a terrible condition from hunger and exposure. The sixteen men saved were in the mate's boat.

According to the story which Captain Trant gleaned from the rescued men, the West Point left Glasgow August 18. Four days later the ship took fire, and after battling with the flames for nearly a week, the crew were obliged to abandon the vessel on August 29, when 500 miles off Cape Race. The men embarked in two boats, the captain and nineteen men taking the one, and the mate and fifteen others the other. No longer able to survive, the West Point sank from sight. Then followed three days of terrible suffering.

For a time the two boats succeeded in keeping together, but Wednesday night they became separated, and at daybreak the mate's boat found themselves alone. When the steamer was abandoned, the men took what food and water they could, but all were on extremely short rations.

Just as the men were beginning to give up hope, the Devonian came along and took the shipwrecked mariners aboard. A search was instituted in vain for the second boat, and the Devonian was obliged to proceed to Boston with only sixteen survivors.
